Head Master's Message

Dear Parents,

Children grow up in the blink of an eye, and while providing for their material needs is essential, what they crave most is your time, attention, and unconditional love. In today's fast-paced world, finding time can be challenging, but giving your children quality time is the greatest investment you can make in their future.

Quality time isn't just about being in the same room; it means truly engaging with them. Listen to their daily stories, play their favorite games, read together, or simply have meaningful conversations without digital distractions. When you actively listen and share moments with your children, you build their self-confidence, emotional security, and trust.

Your presence in their daily life leaves a lasting impact on their character and happiness. Let us cherish these formative years and create warm, loving memories together.

Warm regards,
Tohsin Khan
Headmaster, CGS NC
